

Anunnaki

Our Gods are nothing but mortals
From far above in the stars
We are our own messiahs
We dictate our fates and desires

All I'm taught, is laid before me
In resewn cloth, to worship again

They'll try to rectify you, through guilt, disdain and force
They'll try to villainize you when you defy their source

All you're taught, is laid before you
In resewn cloth, to worship again

Looking back again
Forced to make amends with time
Blinded behind the lies
Searching for the end
To break the wheel that turns our lives
Evolving beyond our sky

Lost in time
Forsaken tales and scribes
Burned, alive
Scrolls now left to dust

All we're taught, is laid before us
In resewn cloth, to worship again

Looking back again
Forced to make amends with time
Blinded behind the lies
Searching for the end
To break the wheel that turns our lives
Evolving beyond our sky