

The Deafening

All alone I fear the time has come
To take on all of the darkness
There's nowhere left to run
Deep within the labyrinth of my mind
I can still hear distant voices
Debating if I'll fight or flight

Of all the ways to burn out and decay
This was not the plan that I'd had of how to be a man
But I'll stand my ground and try to face my fate

Engaging confrontation
How can I defeat my enemy when my enemy looks like me?

The Deafening of a thousand screams inside
I split my skull, against the wall to drown out all the cries
Why do I wage this war? It's only taught me to hate

Engaging confrontation
How can I defeat my enemy when my enemy is me?

I'm betting against myself
